"I want to publicly thank SystemSpecs for saving my state from ghost workers"

— Otunba Gbenga Daniels
(Governor of Ogun State)

during his opening speech at the Nigerian Information Technology and Telecom Awards (NITTA 2006).

From me to you

2006 was a good year for SystemSpecs. We expressed our passion for growth and excellence by releasing Version 4.2. of HumanManager. Combining a vast array of rich functionalities with new levels of performance and reliability, HumanManager 4.2 has set a new standard for "home-developed" software. Early last year, we also launched our funds and schedules remittance service, Remita.

The response has been amazing. The government has accepted HumanManager as the human capital management software of choice and as more banks adopt Remita, the gateway is opening for more corporate organizations to begin using our remittance service.

Africa has also welcomed HumanManager and we provide support to our clients and partners across the continent. Our vision is to be the software institution of reference in Africa.

This year, we will continue to support and advance the objectives of your organization. Leveraging on technology and a strong team of some of the best minds in Nigeria, we will continue to provide support for people, businesses, institutions and the government.

The results will be exciting. Not only will we explore R&D to bring our solution to the world stage, we will continue to use our solutions and services to touch people's lives across all strata of the economy from the parastatals, multinationals, banks, conglomerates, and SME's to the hospitals and NGO's.

SystemSpecs is committed to you. Our support will not waver and we pray that you will continue to record great victories, like us.

Best wishes,

John Tani Obaro, CEO, SystemSpecs.
